Fast, one-click access to millions of research papers

Kopernio is a browser plugin that finds the best available PDF of an academic article while you browse. Behind the scenes Kopernio will search open databases and (where possible) your university's subscriptions to find the best version of the paper for you. The best article PDF is never more than a click away.

The screenshot shows the Kopernio website interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with the Kopernio logo on the left and the text "Already have an account" on the right. Below the navigation bar, there are three main features highlighted with icons: "Turbo charge your literature search." (rocket icon), "Jump over paywalls." (dollar sign icon), and "Work off-campus." (classroom icon). The main content area is titled "Select your university to access library subscriptions". Below this title, there is a search input field with the placeholder text "Start typing your university". A green oval highlights this input field and the "Select this university" button below it. A green arrow points from the "Select this university" button to the right. Below the search field, there is a link "Not affiliated with a university?" and a button labeled "Free PDFs only".

4. Create an account. First, select the name of your academic institution.
